INTRODUCTION

The healthcare industry in India is advancing and reshaping to greater heights, both in growth & dimensions for optimizing the quality of care. Nurses play a key role in taking care of the medical needs of patients.

The students of today's era are born in a totally digital world. Updated and innovative teaching methods are becoming mandatory with efforts to engage Millennial and Generation Z nursing students. With enormous advances in medicine and technology, it is crucial to reform the existing under graduate and postgraduate nursing curriculum to make it relevant to the requirements of current health care system.

Health care sector demands highly competent nurses who are authorized to function independently and collaboratively for an extended clinical role. By recognizing the need of specialist nurses in the Country, the Government of India has set-forth path breaking competency based Nurse Practitioner Programmes.

The roles and responsibilities of nurses are transforming with developments in medical sciences, policy regulations, health care priorities and emerging advances in nursing and scientific research. There are numerous careers and opportunities available in the nursing and health care field one of which is nursing entrepreneurship. In India the concept of entrepreneurship is yet to receive its popularity, while in western countries nurse entrepreneurs are well established with their innovations to support healthcare industry.
